

Vlasoff Sand Cay landing facts:

Read this essential information about your booking

A landing at Vlasoff Sand Cay is not always possible. It is a public area and we can only land when it is unoccupied and when the tides permit a safe landing.

If we can't land, we'll fly-on to discover the beauty of the Outer Reef. With bubbles in hand, this extended custom tour ticks all the boxes. Intricate reef details become vast panoramas as we climb to 3,000 feet, with everything captured on your free in-flight video. Your pilot will discuss this and other options before your flight lifts.

Key to successful landings:

Phone and email contacts: Please ensure we have an email address you check regularly – and a mobile phone number so that we can contact you quickly if the need arises.

Flexibility: We sometimes need to move bookings very slightly – usually only by 30-60 minutes. Very occasionally we might recommend a date change. In either case we will contact you first.

School/Public holidays: Holidays are a busy time all round. Our landing success rate dips during these times as the Cay is more likely to be occupied.

Weekends: Whilst we regularly land on weekends, there is a greater risk of Cairns locals being on the Cay during this time – particularly when the sea is very calm.

High tides: We cannot land during very high tides. We will call you to discuss alternative times if your booking happens to coincide with a high tide.

Wet season: Very occasionally we may need to reduce the time spent on the Sand Cay due to weather conditions that can change quickly.

100% refund or alternative flight offered if you have already booked and want to change your mind (must be 48 hours prior to departure).
